

I am totally apposed to cell phone use on airplanes. People tend to talk very loudly when using cell phones. I have been disturbed many times while traveling on trains because people use the time to conduct their whole days worth of business over the cell phone. On a train you have the ability to move around, on a plane you do not. Nobody needs to use the phone so badly that they have the right to disturb other people. I cannot imagine an 8 hour flight to Europe in which I was trying to sleep and others were jabbering away on the telephone. Thank you.
